

White Monolith

This white monolithic volume deliberately creates a contrast to the surrounding area, while fulfilling the client's dream of urban living in a rural environment. The building presents a relatively closed face to the street, helping to block out noise. A closed thoroughfare leads into the living area, located behind the doctor's practice, while patients have direct access to the practice from the street. A bridge construction connects the living area to the bedrooms and also functions as a carport, allowing protected access to the living area. The kitchen and bedrooms are oriented towards the garden. The simple elegance of the exterior is well suited to the reduced color concept of white, black and ivory.
